The gray dawn lighted the way of seven teen pedestrians in the Madison Square go as-you-please this morning. The early visitor found Jimmy Albert, the favorite for three days, still leading the weary procession

Fitzgerald for the same time in his great race of 1884.

Sinclair and Cox were out of the race officially soon after midnight. Taylor, the piesater; Tilly, the Canadian dominie, Merritt Stout, the "Arab" from West Twenty-Seventh street, and Sam Day, with his "Oh, Mary!" went to bed at 1 o'clock. They were still sweetly sleeping the sleep of the just played-out at 7 o'clock this morning, their hops of ever reaching a figure big enough to give them a share in the divide being gone.

The race had narrowed down at breakfast time to the original favorites.

The crowd at daybreak was gone and the 100 spectators in the Garden were sober and quiet, the beer stands having been closed since 1 o'clock—for the first time during the race.

The failure of the beer had a somnolent effect on the little gathering of the faithful all through the night, and incidents of interest were scarce. There was a small "ruction" at 3 o'clock, but no casualties, and shortly after the only female in the audience emitted scort of wail. She was carried out. Nolvody a sort of wail. She was carried out. Nobody

A. M. in sleep. He looked weary when recalled to the track. Herty slept two hours from 1 o'clock, and Guerrero put in three hours and a half, while two hours did for Golden.

Albert was slowly but surely creeping up upon the record of Charlie Rowell in the 1892 race, and interest in the result at the seventy-ninth hour (7 o'clock) was exciting. People crowded about the scorers and were informed that at 6.45 Albert lacked a mile and six laps of Rowell's seventy-ninth-hour score. Some one told the plucky boy and he immediately broke into a run. He showed up splendidly. He lifted his feet with a remarkable spring, his knees doubling with a wonderfully limber grace, considering the work that he had done since Sunday at midnight. Sure enough, to use the expression of a "profesh," "his feet were as clean as a boy's." There was not a blister on them and not a twitch of pain in any joint. He was as clean as a racehorse. He made the mile in eight minutes and ten seconds.

The spectators cheered wildly, and the pedal expert renewed his speed for another half mile to "Marching Through Georgia" and "Sunnee River" by the orchestra, and then walked in, making Rowell's 375 miles 5 laps at 6.56.56 amid the wildest enthusiasm.

The result of the six hours of plodding from midnight to 6 o'clock this morning, may be found in the subjoined schedule:

At 7 o'clock Albert had travelled 875 miles 6 3-5 laps, or 350 yards better than Rowell's record in 1882, the best heretofore made.

SULLIVAN'S BUN.

Then Albert retired for a little rest. He had surpassed Fitzgerald's record for that hour in his 610-mile race of 1884 by more than nine miles and was in excellent condition.

The work of the four leaders for each twenty-four hours since the start, beginning Sunday at midnight, is as follows:

o'clock this morning, although why he re-turned to his hopeless task is one of the conundrums which must be referred to him-self as the funniest end man on earth, for he had only 200 miles to his credit, of which 103 miles were made in the first twenty-four hours. He hobbled at the rate of about two nours. He hobbied at the rate of about two miles an hour, and with apparent distress. Albert rested and ate a chop for breakfast, while he was being rubbed down, all in twenty minutes. He is the cynosure of all eyes and the admired of all admirers at the Collins, the colored baseballist, is another man whose purpose in continuing his funerea pace in the race, long since lost to him, is past fathoming. He has not made more than two miles an hour for a long time and has been the picture of dejection for two days. two miles an hour for a long time and has been the picture of dejection for two days.

Gus Guerrero, variously styled the "Spaniard." the "Greaser," the "Mexican," the "Mustang," the "Antelope," the "Aztec" and "Yaller-belly" by the omnipresent and ever-familiar gallery god, is growing lazy. He watches the score dials anxiously, but Steve Brodie has been on hand constantly with his club, and the Californian has been held to his work better than ever before in his long career. There is still faith that he will be in at the divide of the gate receipts. Peter Golden looks no worse than yesterday, but that is not saying much. His first experience in this sort of contest is a hard one, but he is plucky and his pluck is admired by the connoisseurs.

Speculation was already rife at 8 o'clock as to the relative records of Albert and Fitzgerald at the end of the fourth day, which will come to Albert at midnight. At that hour in his race Pat Fitzgerald set the record which has not been beaten since. He had scored 447 miles 6 lsps. Of that score 72 miles were made between 7 A. M. and midnight. Albert must make 63 miles during the same hours to beat Fitzgerald's record for ninety-six hours.

Unless some unforeseen accident or illness should occur to the young man he will undoubtedly accomplish this and much more. His friends are highly jubilant over his accomplishments thus far. They are confident that he will break the record for the full time.

An Evening World reporter this morning put this dense conundrum to Parson George Tilly: "Why do you continue in the race?" "Why do you continue in the race?"

The Presbyterian ex-divine replied: "I am going to lecture on pedestrianism, I think it the most magnificent health-giver and invigorator yet discovered and I propose to so teach. I was forced to resign my pastorate in Guelph, Canada, because of continued ill-health. I was a mere skeleton, weighing hardly more than 100 pounds. I took to walking and began to regain my health, and now I weigh, when in proper condition, 140 pounds."

The dominie has a wife and seven children. He has been in several races. He is a quiet, soft-spoken man, forty years of age.

THE BAGPIPER.

The best record for eighty-two hours was made by George Littlewood, the Englishman, at Philadelphia, in November last, where he won, making 569 miles, with Albert second, Panchot third and Noremac fourth. The faithful wives of Albert, Strokel and Noremac still remain at their posts. The two last named are almost as heavy-eyed and woebegone in expression as their plodding husbands, the wife of the little Scotchman being particularly wearled. But she is still full of confidence in her George, who has come out victor in races seemingly as hopeless as this one.

Mrs. Albert, on the contrary, is full of life and spirits. She chats pleasantly with callers, who are not a few, and looks fondly and proudly upon her husband.

Inquiries for Manager Hall at his office in the Garden this morning were met with an approximent that he had gone to Jefferson proudly upon her husband.

Inquiries for Mansger Hall at his office in the Garden this morning were met with an announcement that he had gone to Jefferson Market Police Court to appear against Louis Waldron, who had "punched" him at about 1.30 o'clock this morning. The circumstances of the affair, as related by people who were present are that Waldron asked Manager Hall for complimentary tickets. Mr. Hall replied gruffly and Waldron struck him with his fist, flooring him. Policemen took Waldron into custody before the trouble went any further.

In the Jefferson Market Police Court Waldron said that he was an advertising agent. He was held in $300 bail for trial.

Poor old Stout, the Arabian artist with the whitewash brush, was pulled out of his cot by his friends at 10.25, just eleven hours after his retirement. He walked on eggs for two laps. The little crowd cheered and guyed the poor fellow, whereupon he broke into a run like that of a lame camel. The crowd cheered hilariously, and the Arab thus stimulated caught up with and passed the leaders, who were running at the dog trot which they have kept up for two days.

Frank Dole, of Philadelphia, the man who managed George Littlewood in America on his last visit, is negotiating with W. A. Hoag.

Frank Dole, of Philadelphia, the man who managed George Littlewood in America on his last visit, is negotiating with W. A. Hoagland for a match at heel and toe for six days. William Corney is anxious to made the race a three-cornered sweepstakes for $1,000 a corner, with Joe Scott, the Australian champion, now in England, as his entry. The race, if made, will be open to others outside of the special sweepstakes. Hoagland favors the idea. Mr. Dole is considering the proposition.

The Philadelphian was cheered enthusiastically at this announcement. The crowd went wild with enthusiasm. Ed Plummer, who has been scorer for a score of races, ejaculates: "Best the record? Should say he would! Smash it to splinters! Look at the man. He is as clean as a daisy."

MRS. ALBERT CRIES FOR JOY. Albert finished his four hundredth mile at 22.31 p. M. amid cheering, hand-clapping and other encouragement. This was nine miles better than Rowell's record for the same however, and of pride at the prowess of her husband.

There was one feature of the race in which Pat Fitzgerald beat the record which old heads say was in his favor, and a feature which they declare will not appear in this race. John Hughes, the "Lepper," hotly pressed Fitzgerald to the very close of the race, forcing him for the last two days to his utmost to keep the lead.

The experienced say that Peter Panchot will fall back to-morrow, and that without the goad of a constant rival for the lead Albert will not be able to keep up his pace. But Panchot seems to be in good condition to-day—at least not worse than he has been at the same stage of the many races that he has run.

It is not believed that any of the other men will press Albert particularly, as it is thought that they have been compelled to their utmost to keep up with the procession thus far.

The band resumed operations at 1 o'clock. Gus Guerrero celebrated it by limbering into his old graceful run, for which he was rewarded by applause by the spectators.

Interest in the race grows apace. At 2 o'clock there were more people in the Garden than on any previous day at that hour. There were a score of ladies among them.

There is no doubt that the city members of the Senate and Assembly would object to sessions here. ### ARSON TO PAY A DEBT

An Alleged Conspiracy to Defraud Insurance Companies.

Arrest of a Broadway Merchant as the Chief Plotter.

Moses Strauss Charged With Having Arranged to Increase the Insurance and Then Burn the Store of a Bowery Tailor Who Could Not Pay a Debt-Extraordinary Statements Made to Inspector Byrnes-Warned to Get the Women and Children Out.

Inspector Byrnes made public this morning the details of what he believes is an extraordinary conspiracy to defraud insurance companies. He worked on the case six weeks and this morning some of his detectives arrested Moses Strauss, a dealer in tailors' trimmings at 508 Broadway, on a charge of conspiracy to defraud.

Strauss was taken to Police Headquarters and locked up there pending further investigation. It seems that he has a criminal record, inashuch as he served seven years in State prison for having received stolen goods, Yesterday the Inspector submitted the facts he had gathered to Police Justice White, and the latter issued a warrant, upon which Strauss was arrested.

The chief witness is Jacob Samuels, a member of the firm of Samuels & Brother, tailors at 246 Bowery, and living at 225 East Forty-ninth street.

In an affidavit made to Inspector Byrnes Samuels says that he has known Strauss since 1882. He had succeeded in running up a bill in the latter's house amounting to about $$1.000 a bill in the latter's house amounting to about $1,900.

In the latter part of 1887 Strauss came to him and told him that he did not think that Samuels would be ever prepared to pay him, and that he wanted the money badly right off.

The tailor replied that he could not give Strauss any money yet, as he was very poor.

"But," said Strauss, "you can pay it very easily if you follow my advice."

"How?" asked Samuels.

"Why, let the place go off," was the reply.

"I don't understand you," Samuels said, and asked for an explanation.

Strauss then asked him how much insurance he had, and Samuels replied about ance he had, and Samuels replied about $3,500. The merchant told him to get $6,000 more on, and that he would attend to the rest.

The next day a surveyor for an insurance company called on Samuels and said he had been sent by D. L. Fraeger, an agent. He looked over the stock and refused to take the risk.

Samuels then called on Strauss and asked what all this meant. The latter replied that he had sent to Praeger, and that the latter was an agent on the Hoyal, London and Liverpool, Merchants, New York and Bowery convenies.

erpool, Merchants, New York and Bowery companies.

On Jan. 7, last, Praeger peremptorily refused to have anything to do with the matter. On Jan. 2, Stranss told him that he would arrange things any way, and that Samuels had better call for Stern, an insurance agent at 118 or 181 Broadway, who would fix it all right.

Stern sent a surveyor of the Knickerbocker Insurance Company, who also refused to take the risk.

Next Mendell Steinthal, of 34 East Fourth street, was applied to by Strauss. Steinthal is an agent for several companies. Strauss told Samuels that if Steinthal could not "fix it" with the city companies he could with those out of town. those out of town.

Samuels says that Strauss paid one months'
rent for the store and declared to Samuels that he had "fixed it" with Arnheim, the iandlord, so that if Samuels moved Arnheim would say that it was because of repairs to the building.

Then Strauss gave him $100 to pay his moving expenses, and on Feb. 1 he moved Strauss next provided him with a complete set of old books, fully written up, which falsely showed that Samuels carried at the time the fire was to take place $12,000 worth of stock. This, Strauss explained, was to convince the insurance companies that there was no "snap game" going on. Strauss then induced Samuels, it is alleged. Strauss then induced Samuels, it is alleged, to make a sixty-day note to Steinthal for $300, payable at the Home Bank, and received in return three policies for the additional $6,000 in out-of-town companies. Immediately after this transaction Strauss informed the tailor that he had better move the women and children out of his house, as there was "no telling when the thing might go up."

At this Samuels got scared, and the more he thought about it the more scared he got, until he went to Inspector Byrnes's office and told of the alleged conspiracy. Samuels is now in a somewhat advan-tageous position, for probably he will not pay Strauss the $1,990 he owes him, and he has succeeded in getting $225 for rent and expenses out of the accused man. Inspector Byrnes declares that he feels confident he can prove a case against Straus. Homospathic Subjects Discussed. The Homeopathic Society of the County of New York will meet this evening. The curative proper Coercion in Ireland Is Approved and Advocated.

Beginning of a Battle on the Irish Question Which May Result in a Change of Mine istry-Various Measures Which Will be Brought Forth During the Session-The Usual Search for Dynamite Results in the Discovery of Nothing Dangerous.

London, Feb. 9.-It was an anxious Parliament that opened to-day—the beginning of a long and fierce battle on the eternal Irish question which may end in a change of Ministry.

Here is the Queen's speech :

Ministry.

Here is the Queen's speech:

MY LORDS AND GERTLEMEN: I continue to receive from all the powers cordial assurances of friendly sentiments, as well as of an earnest desire to maiutain the peace of the world.

Animated by a desire to prevent an effusion of blood I despatched a mission to the Eing of Abysinia with the hope of dissauding him from engaging in war with Italy. I deeply regret that my clotter were not successful.

The deliberations of the conference at Washington to adjust questions which have arisen between Canada and America are still progressing.

The negotiations commenced in 1885 in respect to the regulation of the Succ Canal have been brought to a conclusion so far as the points of difference between myself and the French Republic are concerned. I have also entered into an agreement with France for the protection of life and property in the New Hebrides by a joint naval commission. Gentlemen of the House of Commons, the estimates for services for 1888 which will be laid before you have been framed with a due regard for economy. You will be asked to provide for the improvement of the defense of the ports and coaling stations rendered argently necessary by the advance of military science and also to sanction an arrangement providing for a special squadron to protect Australaxian commerce, the cost of which will be partially borne by the colonies.

My Lords and Gentlemen, fine measures which at great labor you passed last session for the benefit of Ireland have been carefully carried into effect during the period since elapsed. The result of this legislation, so far as tested by this short experience, is satisfactory. Agrarian crime has diminished and the power of corecive conspiracies has sensibly abated.

Measures tending to develop the resources of Ireland and to facilitate an increase in the number of proprietors of the soil will be laid before you. Your attention will be invited to the subject of local government in England. Measures will be submitted for dealing with it in combinatio

ALBERT PLAYS THE BANJO. A close observer would have said that the handsome fellow was in as good feather as at any time since the start. His good wife re ported cheerily that he was in excellent trim. He had not been off the track since midnight, when his score stood at 348 miles. Panchot at that hour had covered 342 miles; Herty, 332; Guerrero, 330, and Golden 300, while Hart was asleep. Thus Albert was only five miles behind Charlie Rowell's record in the race which he won in 1882, and was ahead of a sort of wail. She was carried out. Nobody seemed to know the cause of the wail nor the name of the "wailer."

At 6 o'clock Horace Weston, the famous, and his banjo, became apparent in the big parilion. The colored man dexterously picked the strings for the benefit of Dan Herty, who had reached third place and was a good leader of Guerrero, his nearest follower. Weston ran inside the fence to keep up with his favorite while he played. Herty's spirits rose as he gratefully thanked his colored admirer.

Afterwards Jimmie Albert, who can thumb a breakdown, borrowed the banjo and played Afterwards Jimmie Albert, who can thumb a breakdown, borrowed the banjo and played as he ran for two laps. The little crowd of spectators cheered enthusiastically.

Frank Hart, the steady-go colored boy, was in excellent form at daybreak, although he had been off and on the track at short intervals during the whole night, and had lost his place ahead of Herty.

Rioremae spent the time from 12.30 to 5.30.
